

Guidelines for authors

Aqua Culture Asia Pacific Magazine, a bimonthly trade publication is dedicated to the fast developing aquaculture industry of Asia. In each issue, we feature technical/business articles of interest to all stakeholders in the commercial aquaculture industry. In addition, we have industry news, updates on aquaculture development and information on new products.

The magazine covers all aspects in fish/shrimp production ranging from hatchery, feeds and farm management, health and genetic issues, to feed manufacturing, product quality and the business aspects of this industry. The objective of articles is to provide applicable information to readers, ranging from farm and hatchery managers, nutritionist, feed manufacturers, consultants, equipment and ingredient suppliers.

Articles

All contributions should be precise. The number of words for an article should range from 700 (one printed page) to 1,500 (2.5 printed pages). We suggest articles using trial data from Asia Pacific and on species relevant to the Asia Pacific region. They should be technically sound with trial data of good quality and preferably statistically analysed, when relevant. Articles should be submitted as Email attachments in Word to the editor at zuridah@aquasiapac.com

Style and Content

The objective is to present information to the industry in an interesting and readable manner. Articles should be in english using vocabulary understandable to all levels of the industry, similar to other trade publications. Try to submit articles which are objective and industry rfocussed rather than brand oriented. We try to avoid extensive references to promotional information within articles. Please write to us if you have contributions in Chinese or any other regional language.

Photos/graphs/tables

The number will depend on the need to illustrate points in the article. Clearly defined captions should accompany each photo. The source of the photographs, if other than the authors, should be included. You may embed the photos etc in the document to illustrate but for printing purposes we need these separately; photos as jpeg and graphs as excel or in power point formats.

References

The use of references should to be kept to an absolute minimum. Please include the DOI when available.
